First Hard hat recycling scheme launched

Viridor has launched what it claims is the first recycling scheme for hard hats to divert them from landfill. Viridor has launched what it claims is the first recycling scheme for hard hats to divert them from landfill. with the life-span of a hard-hat at just two to five years, thousands are binned every month.

Now waste management company Viridor is working with Devon plastic recycling specialist Polymer Industries to give old hard hats new life as plastic products such as refuse bins. "Hard hats aren't accepted for commercial recycling due to their complex plastic composition but we know our customers want us to identify a circular economy solution," said Viridor account manager Ian Poyser. A trial has been rolled out with Babcock International Group, resulting in 1,200 hats recycled to date, with more expected as the trial progresses.
